Bug reporting

phpList is a software with a 20 year history and over the course of these years many issues and bugs have been discovered by the users. Reporting bugs is one of the most important aspects of building functional but most important secure software.

Reporting a bug responsibly

When disclosing a bug finding, contributors help ensure that phpList performs as it expected to and is secure. In case you discover a security flaw, please make sure to report this responsibly and privately because otherwise thousands of phpList installations get exposed to potential attacks! When disclosing a bug finding, You can report your findings at:

- GitHub repos
- community forum
- direct, private email at info@phplist.com (please use a descriptive subject)
